Global Images of U.S. Women.
An exhibition of postcard art, highlights the work of almost 200 international women artists from outside the United States, representing their artistic interpretations of U.S. women. Striking, ironic, humorous, visually powerful and thoughtful, their works compel us to complicate the narrative that frames the U.S. as a "superpower" and to interrogate our understandings of how global negotiations of influence and ideology are understood outside the boundaries of our country. Hosted by the Martha Gault Art Society, the Gender Studies Program and the Know Art Project, it is the accumulation of an exciting and productive collaboration.
